READ HIS LETTER.

Against Mrs. Bremer.

He Asked Her Resignation, but She Refused to Resign.

His Explanation About His Holding Back Necessary Blanks and Supplies.

Much indignation is expressed in labor cir tor Connolly in attacking Mrs. Alexander er, a Deputy Factory Inspector, of this city. Mrs. Bremer was appointed under the law passed in 1890, directing that there be eight woman Factory Inspectors in this State work has been noticeably able, and in addition to the performance of her duties in the factories she has done much good by call ing the attention of the city authorities to s outside of her balliwick. Immediately after the recent election, Mrs.

Bremer received a letter from Mr. Connolly asking for her resignation on the grounds that she was incompetent. Mrs. Bremer wrote back asking for specific charges, clain ing that she had done her work well and faithfully. She refused to resign unless they were made. Connolly falled to answer her ing for the supplies and blank forms neces sary to her work in the factories. This letter was written by her husband, who signed her putting beneath it "per A. B." No answer from Inspector Connolly. A second letter was sent with the same request. No

Connolly did not reply to a third, and Mrs Bremer sought advice as to what she should do. Mr. Connolly knew that he was crippling her by not sending the supplies, and it looke as it he was trying to freeze her out. The resignation of Mrs. Gibson, of Syracuse, was also asked. On Monday the following paragraph was printed in THE EVENING WORLD.

Mr. Connolly has demanded several resugnations, and when specific charges were requested he re-lapsed into silence. Since then he has kept back the blanks necessary to the conduct of the work. Yesterday Mr. Connolly sent the following letter to Mrs. Bremer, and also gave it to the

The letter is written on official paper, giving information in recard to certain factories in your district, and ask ing for supplies for the transaction of your busi-ness as Deputy Inspector. I have received two or per A.B. In reply thereto I desire to say that when the Factory Inspector appointed you one of the Deputies that appintment did not carry with it the right of transferring your powers or duties into the hands of others not connected with this office. I do not recognize the right of you to appoint a subtitute. Your duties are clearly defined by the law office officially under your own name the matter will be properly attended to. Very respectfully yours, JAMES CONNOLLY, Factory Inspector

"Mr. Connolly's action is ill-advised," a an fully informed of the facts said to day, " and I think he made a mistake in making public the letter printed this morning He demanded Mrs. Bremer's resignation on the ground of incompetency, which was a bterfuge. Appreciating this and the fact that her reputation was at stake she wrote him that she would not resign unless he made specific charges, and asked for them. Connoily ignored her letter, and desiring to get some pretext rejused to send her tion work, although she wrote for them sevthe receipt of these letters he is grossly guilty was crippling her by not sending supplies.

"I think that the whole controversy will prove beneficial to those working in factories. Mrs. Bremer does not propose to be removed unless cause is shown. She has worked faithfully and has a good record. Connolly is a over, and has lost the support of many of the labor organizations which backed him when he was originally appointed. An airing of his action regarding Mrs. Bremer is not likely to help his chances for reappointment. When seen by an EVENTNO WOKLD reporter

this morning Factory Inspector Connolly "There is no politics whatever in this affair so far as I am concerned. Personally Mrs tor she has proven unsatisfactory.

"The letter in question was written by m to Mrs. Bremer, because the law gives no one papers except herself. The distinction bereen an assistant's signing her name in an official capacity and in a business capacity may appear like a small one to some people es not to me."

"But Mrs. Bremer's husband signed her name in a mere clerical capacity, just as he filled out her blanks?" interposed the re

That may be very true, but how do I know that if he was allowed to sign her name in an official capacity, as he did, he would not asfacturers, or, in short, perform his wife's offi-

"I do not insinuate that he did or would do this, but such a thing would not be an impossibility if the practice was allowed to be-

"I shouldn't be at all surprised if it was," replied Mr. Connoily. "The law gives the SUED FOR A SKYROCKET'S WORK. Chief Inspector the power to appoint his deputies, and also of removing them. Mr. Connolly also intimated that Mrs. Bre mer had made "newspaper sensations" out of many of her official acts; that she had Factory Inspector Connolly's Fight

Deen indiscreet in preferring charges against people in court that she could not sustain, her knowledge of the alleged facts being only "hearsay" evidence, and that on more than one occasion she had been guilty of insubor dination to her chief.

> "Most of my female deputies," continued Mr. Connolly, " have done eminently satisfac-tory service. Those with whom I have experienced any difficulty have almost invaria bly been over-zealous rather than neglectful and it is this condition that sometimes need to be guarded against.

> · While it is the duty of factory inspectors to look after the interests of the working classes, they have no right to needlessly in ure a man's business.

> "Another point. I desire my deputies t keep the office posted on all abuses in their districts, in order that they may be advised. if necessary, how to proceed. Unless this is done, it becomes possible for the deputy, i so inclined, to levy blackmail upon the guilty manufacturer. Such a condition of affairs, of course, could not be tolerated by the Department for a moment.

> " Another thing. The failure of a deputy to report any existing abuses to the office, when the deputy is cognizant of them, brings discredit on the Department.

> " It is such things as these that Impair the standing of the Department. I do not question Mrs. Bremer's motives, but in many ways she has proven unsatisfactory."

Chicago Speculators Pincted in a November Corn Corner.

Chicago market, with the result that "the shorts" are being terribly squeezed.

The firms which are said to be running the corner are the big receiving houses in Chicago, including Bartlett, Frazier & Co., Casor & Martin, Norton & Worthington and two or three less prominent concerns.

A week ago November corn was selling in Chicago at 52 cents a bushel. Last Wednesday morning it closed at 75 cents, and this morning 80 cents was bid for it in Chicago. It is said that the manipulators are bent upon getting it up to $1 a bushel, and will not let their victims off at any lower figure. The corn market here is not disturbed by the corner in the West, as the speculative dealings in corn in New York have been very small. Quotations are simply a shade higher than last week, November corn being now quoted here nominally at 76 cents.

The short interest in the Chicago market is believed to be about 1,500,000 bushels, principally for the account of the provision speculators, though it is said that Phil ArMr. Field had been failing mentally for some time past. He had been told that member of Mr. Field's family had noticed peculiarities in his actions for a year past. It was never suspected, however, until within the last week, that he was not able to the shorts to make their deliveries.

The manipulators are prepared to buy everything that is offered, so that there is no escape from the clutches of the clique, and it is considered probable that the squeeze will extend to December deliveries.

The receiving firms who now have their grip on the shorts are the same people who knocked out Deacon White's corner in september corn by delivering more than he could take.

The corn that came out on those deliveries has to a large extent been shipped East and disposed of, and it was not discovered till very recently that there was a large short interest in the market, with very little ready corn to meet it. attend to business.

interest in the market, with very little ready corn to meet it.

The mentioned firms, therefore, who held all of this corn, put their heads together and decided that, as the market had practically cornered itself, they would give the shorts a chance to see how it felt to be squeezed. All they had to do was simply to hold on to what they had and wait.

The result is now apparent. It is said that they expect to squeeze from $250,000 to the shorts and then drop their.

Within the past three months the firm has been advancing large sums of money in an enterprise which Mr. Gould declines to define.

A very large amount of money is involved. Mr. Field has had complete charge of the management of this enterprise.
